CLEAN ENERGY PROJECT

Environment and climate change being one of the core focus area of RWUS, clean energy project was started in partnership with SELCO Foundation, Bangalore. The goal of this project is to promote environment through clean and renewable energy which can be easily access by poor families. The organization also tied up with Canara Bank for easy solar financing. In 2016, 65 families adopted clean energy for their daily energy needs.

SMILE PROJECT

SMILE project is a small initiative started by RWUS way back in 2010 with the aims to bring back the SMILE on the face of the orphan, widows and victims of disaster. The initiative started with contribution from the staffs and well wisher. It is a small gesture driven by the spirit of giving and care to the most often neglected people in the society. By providing small gifts to these deserving people, it conveys the message that they are not forgotten and that God works in a miraculous way and always provides through his people.

This year, RWUS provided 45 blankets to widows who are in dire needs. Most of these widows are elderly, who crossed the prime of their life and dependent on their family for their well being. Some of the beneficiaries are seriously sick and bedridden even when the gifts were given to them while some widows live all alone by themselves. Most of the beneficiaries are surprised upon receiving the blankets and quite some of them cried out as they received the gifts and praise God for having someone who cares about them. Most of the beneficiaries felt that they will never have such a valuable and warm blanket had it not been for the donors and RWUS who selected them.

The 45 beneficiaries are selected from 9 villages in Churachandpur district that are poor and elderly from different communities. As a direct impact of climate change, the winter becomes more extreme with each passing year and by mid January, there used to be a small amount of snow falling which makes more difficult for the poor to face the winter. As most of the people could not afford a room heater, charcoal is widely used. But the escalating cost of charcoal every year makes it unaffordable for the poor to light the charcoal every night. It is more so for the poor and widows who suffers from the chilly winter. Thus RWUS came with the idea of giving a blanket to warm them from the extreme cold.

Mrs Paokhohling is a widow who lives in a small hamlet called Saheiphai village which is 5 kilometres from the town. She belongs to kuki tribe which is a dominant community in the district. There were about 40 household in the village. Originally, Ms Paokhohling is from Chandel district which is a neighbouring district. Unfortunately, an ethnic conflict during the 90s forced them to migrate to this village with her husband. She had 2 children who died in their early years and lived with her husband working in an upland field to make a living. She was happy and contented however poor she is. Unfortunately her husband passed away some years ago and now lived a life of solitary with helps from neighbours. She doesn't have any relative nearby and with her old age, it is impossible for her to do any kind of physical work. Thus she depends on the communities she lived with for their help in providing food grains and other essential commodities.

The hut she lives in is barely 8 feet x 6 feet with very few belongings. She has 3 small cooking pots and it is heartening to that someone as old as her could live such a miserable and hard life. She sometimes collected wild broom from the nearby villages and sell it for a small amount.

When she receives the blanket, she was speechless and feels very emotional. She informed RWUS staff that she never had the wildest dreams of having such a nice and warm blanket to warm her body during the entire winter. She said "i am so elated and happy because of this blanket because i know it was God who provided me through unknown person form other places. I thank God and also thank the people who donate money to buy it. With this gift I fell so blessed and may the almighty bless you all abundantly"

RWUS sincerely thank donors and well wishers who year after year continue to contribute money for this noble cause bringing a smile to the heart and face of the poor, needy and deserving people like widows, orphan and victim of disaster in Churachandpur and other parts of Manipur.
